Convocation Participants

Jasmyn Summer Bradley, daughter of Hal and Jeanne Bradley, is from Victorville, California. She is graduating magna cum laude and receiving a bachelor of arts degree in humanities, with an emphasis in foreign literature, and minors in music and French. Jasmyn has studied piano for 15 years. She was home schooled, and her mother was her first piano instructor. After graduation she plans to return home and work as a substitute teacher while preparing for graduate school. There she anticipates earning a master's degree in education research.

Carl Joseph Cranney, son of Charles and Andria Cranney of Provo, is graduating with a bachelor of arts degree in philosophy and a minor in logic. He received several scholarships while attending BYU. In addition, he served as associate and later editor in chief of Aporia: A Student Journal of Philosophy; published papers in Selections from the 2003 Religious Students Symposium and in Aporia; and won the 2005 David H. Yarn Philosophical Essay Contest. His honors thesis, Fool's Gold, is a novel under consideration at Palmyra Press in Boston. Carl has received a scholarship from Yale Divinity School, where this fall he will begin a master of arts program in religion.

Allison Briggs Crockett, daughter of Mark and Chris Briggs, is graduating magna cum laude with a bachelor of arts degree in comparative literature and minors in Spanish and classical studies (Latin option). As a Robert K. Thomas scholar, she has enjoyed writing a thesis for and participating in the Honors Program at BYU. Study in Spain aided Allison with the Spanish portions of her honors thesis. The experience was a highlight of her undergraduate studies. A member of Eta Sigma Phi Classics Honor Society and Chi Gamma Lambda Comparative Literature Honor Society, she has been heavily involved in organizing a literary theory faculty lecture series for the Comparative Literature Student Association.

Mary Kathleen Eyring, daughter of Henry Bennion and Kathleen Johnson Eyring, is graduating summa cum laude with a bachelor of arts degree in English. Her mother's love of good children's books and her father's talent for storytelling made her love literature and appreciate artistic talent. She was further lifted by professors who gave her a sense of literature's ability to enlighten and inspire. On the Dean's List and a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi, Mary attended BYU on a full academic scholarship. She also worked as a tutor in the Writing Center and in the Publication Lab, where she enjoyed discussing ideas and helping her fellow students understand the writing process. She now plans to pursue a master's degree in English literature.

Nancy Wairemana Tarawhiti, daughter of Hori Teira and Cairo Hawaii Kirangi Tarawhiti of Temple View, New Zealand, is graduating with a master of arts degree in teaching English to speakers of other languages. She earned her bachelor's degree while attending BYU-Hawaii and performing at the Polynesian Cultural Center. She has held management positions for different industries in New Zealand, working in air traffic control, in health insurance, and for the New Zealand Dairy Board. Here at BYU Nancy was a recipient of the Fritz Burns Scholarship and represented the Linguistics and English Language Department in the Graduate Student Association, a role that allowed her to serve and mentor other graduate students. This fall she will join the BYU faculty as a member of the English Language Center's executive council, where she will mentor new teachers and international students from more than 30 nations.

A. Arwen Taylor was born and raised in Orem, Utah, and has attended BYU for the past five years. Graduating magna cum laude with a double major in English and linguistics and a minor in music, she has played the viola in the University Symphony and the Philharmonic Orchestra as well as performing with a number of BYU musicals and operas; her favorite was Carmina Burana in 2002. This fall Arwen will study medieval English language and literature at the University of Indiana-Bloomington. She hopes to become a professor, write novels, and live in England's Northumberland County.
